TARGET AUDIENCE

Gastroenterologists, internists, family practitioners, physician assistants, physicians-in-training and researchers with an interest in the pathophysiology, diagnosis, and clinical management of gastrointestinal and other common diseases and their relationship to the microbiome.

CME EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

After completing this activity, participants should be better able to:

- Discuss evolving concepts regarding the role of the gut microbiome in gastrointestinal and liver health.
- Describe current research advances in understanding the composition and function of the gut microbiome.
- Discuss how modification of the gut microbiome can be used as a therapeutic strategy in gastrointestinal and liver health.

ACCREDITATION STATEMENT

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the accreditation requirements and policies of the New Mexico Medical Society (NMMS) through the joint providership of Rehoboth McKinley Christian Health Care Services (RMCHCS) and the Gi Health Foundation (GiHF). RMCHCS is accredited by the NMMS to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

RMCHCS designates this live activity for a maximum of 2.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
